An introduction to Guangzhou

South China Normal University is located in the City of Guangzhou.

Guangzhou, the capital city of Guangdong Province, is an international metropolis in South China. Located near the South China Sea, Guangzhou is also close to Hong Kong and Macau. It is not only a national central city, a world-famous trading port, but also the political, economic, scientific, educational, cultural and military centers of south China.

As one of the most active frontier cities and one of the windows of China, Guangzhou's economic power ranks third in China. Guangzhou is also one of the beginnings of the Maritime Silk Road. As one of the largest commercial cities in China, Guangzhou is called "the Ancient Capital of Commerce" and named "Best Commercial City in Mainland China" by Forbes three years in a row. Inaugurated in 1975, the China Import and Export Fair, also known as the "Canton Fair" as it always holds in Guangzhou, is the largest international commercial fair in Asia.

Guangzhou is also a city known for its history and culture. It is a dynamic and multi-cultural city. In Guangzhou, you can experience Lingnan Culture, which enjoys a history of over 2,200 years. In here, you'll see the spirit of pragmatism, open, compatibility and innovation. You can also experience the modern part of the city, the subway, the international airport, the Canton Tower and so on. People from the nation and all over the world visit Guangzhou for business, travel and for living. At the same time, they share the city with different cultures, customs and religions.

The view of Guangzhou is amazing, with the beautiful Baiyun Mountain and charming Pearl River. The sub-tropical climate brings no cold winters or hot summers to Guangzhou and makes it a livable garden city. Besides, Guangzhou is also a model city of national environment protection and listed as a National Health City. Guangzhou is an important transportation hub of China, with its convenient air transportation, road traffic and sea travel. You can take bus, subways, trains or planes and reach wherever you want. The Cantonese food is one of the Chinese four cuisines. It is known for its unique dishes and good tastes. Abundant entertainment and leisure facilities are available in Guangzhou.

Please come to Guangzhou if you want to start an international business, try the delicious Cantonese food, or experience and share the rapid development of China.

Welcome to Guangzhou!

South China Normal University is an institution of higher education with a long history and a rich legacy. Situated in Guangzhou, the open metropolis in South China, South China Normal University is imbued with Lingnan's pioneering and pragmatic spirits. It has developed a tradition of elegant simplicity and fostered a strong learning environment. Since its founding, South China Normal University has preserved its characteristics of teacher education and has been devoted to cultivating talents with moral integrity, independent thinking, innovative ability and the sense of social responsibility.

In the new century in which institutions of higher education are getting increasingly involved in the social and economic development, South China Normal University has adopted an international view on education. Having broadened its horizon on the key issue of cultivating talents, it has made its greatest efforts to create a congenial and harmonious environment for both teaching and academic research and has fostered a rich variety of campus culture. It aims to build itself into a high-level comprehensive university with open distinctive features.

An Introduction to SCNU

Built in 1933, South China Normal University is a comprehensive university created by the Ministry of Education and Guangdong Province. As a 211 project key university, SCNU locates in Guangzhou and has three campuses, Shipai campus, Guangzhou Higher Education Mega Center campus, and Nanhai campus. SCNU is one of the first few high universities which are able to admit foreign students, the recipient of Chinese Government Scholarship and Confucius Institute Scholarship, and one of the first "Chinese Cultural Propagation and Inheritance Base" assigned by Guangdong Government.

SCNU now has 30 faculties, including 87 undergraduate majors, more than 200 master programs and over 100 doctoral programs. There are altogether 12 categories, including economics, law, education, literature, history, science, engineering, management, agriculture, art, and medical science. Psychology, science of sports, and education rank top 10 in the whole nation. Chemistry, study of plants and animals, engineering and maths is among top 1% in ESI global ranking.

The level of teaching faculties here is rather high. There are 2030 full-time teachers, among which including 1152 teachers with senior or above titles, and 1,132 MA student supervisors. The university now has 35,131 full-time students, with more than 1,000 foreign students each year. The university focuses on cultivating talents and forms a complete bachelor-master-doctor-post-doctor talent training system.

SCNU welcomes schools overseas and is very active in international communication. The university has nearly 30-year history in international Chinese language teaching. Furthermore, it cooperated with more than 130 universities and institutions overseas. For example, the university built three Confucius Institutes with Coquitlam in Canada, Université de la Réunion in France, and University of Latvia.

In the future, SCNU will base itself in Guangdong and open to South East China and even the world. We will devote ourselves to teacher education, and turn SCNU into a top comprehensive normal university in the world.

Viajar a China ha sido una de las mejores experiencias que he vivido, desde conocer y adaptarme a una nueva cultura llena de costumbres y tradiciones, hasta hacer nuevas amistades y convivir con compañeros.

China es un país maravilloso. Desde mi llegada, todos los días me sorprende con una nueva experiencia.

Gracias a South China Normal University aprendí el idioma más rápido de lo que pensaba. Para mí "Huashi" es una familia, sus profesores y directivos han sido un apoyo fundamental desde el día que llegue a esta universidad.

Although my study in Guangzhou was only a semester long, it certainly was memorable. Between the distinctive smell of the vendors at West Gate, the modernity of the buildings, and the impressive display of nature, this southern city is certainly unique. South China Normal University (more colloquially known as Huashi) is a little town in itself with shops and parks very near to the dormitory. The classes themselves are encompassing, instructing students in spoken, written, listening and reading Chinese. The school allows you to try different levels of classes the first week so you are ensured the best fit for your level. Once you settle in and organize yourself, your stay in Guangzhou is sure to be unforgettable.

An Introduction to SIC

School of International Culture was set up in January, 2004. After 10 years construction, it has become a good and large-scale of Chinese language teaching and research institution with distinctive teaching characteristic and wide influence home and abroad. Now the school has Chinese language and culture programs, center of Chinese language education courses, research center of Chinese international teaching, 6 research sections and 3 master programs. There are more than 60 teachers and staffs in the school, among which including 6 professors (2 of them PhD supervisor), 14 associate professors, and 17 teachers with doctoral degrees. Our school is not only one of the first "Chinese Cultural Propagation and Inheritance Base" assigned by Guangdong Government Overseas Affairs Office and Guangdong Education Department, but also the main base of the South China Normal University's Research Center of Lingnan Culture. Besides, SIC also has two school-level innovative programs, the Research Center of Internationalized education and Research Center of Chinese Language Learning and International Propagation, and 4 college-level programs. SIC has built up a professional and dedicated group of teaching faculties with reasonable structure, strong teaching and research abilities who already makes remarkable teaching and research progress.

With a larger teaching scale and better teaching quality, SIC's unique advantages begins to appear. In the past ten years, our college has already cultivated near 10,000 foreign students from different countries and areas, becoming one of the important bases of Chinese language teaching and international academic communications in Guangdong Province or even the whole nation. Now there are more than 1,000 enrolled students, including over 60 masters in Chinese language teaching, near 20 masters in discipline and science of teaching, more than 200 undergraduates and over 800 language students. SIC also emphasize the importance of broadening its vision and internationalization. The school already has 6 overseas intern base. It also keep in touch with Overseas Affairs Office of the State Council, Guangdong

Government Overseas Affairs Office and the headquarters of Confucius Institute and has different kinds of cooperation, such as sending teachers and volunteers to several countries and areas to teach Chinese and Improve sino-foreign communications.

Today, Chinese culture is going through the process of inheritance and innovation, rebirth and prosper, and walking to the world. Under this background, SIC will stick to its rules of "based on south east Asia, influencing the around, and facing the world" in SCNU's development of building a high level and internationalized university. The college will focus on both talent training and scientific research, especially improving the quality of talented people.
